

TOP Business Video Conferencing Solutions

Zoom

Zoom is ideal for anyone who works remotely or has remote team members. Zoom allows for simple, easy meetings or regular meetings in your personal meeting room. Quickly create and share a private meeting link with an individual or team and connect remote team members through video.

Top Free Features:

- Host up to 100 participants
- HD video and audio
- Private and group chat
- Unlimited 1 to 1 meetings
- Screen sharing
- Host controls
- 40 minute group meetings
- Scheduled meetings

Google Hangouts Meet

Google Hangouts Meet is a simple way to connect with Google contacts (or those outside your network) and can be used for personal or business reasons. Use this tool for individual conversations, team meetings, recorded demos, and more. Hangouts Meet Premium Versions are available Free until July 31st, 2020.

Top Free Features:

- Up to 25 video participants
- Join calls using Google Calendar
- Video, audio, and messenger conversations
- Screen sharing

Skype

The free version of Skype works well for small teams with less than 10 total team members. It is a good tool if you need a simple way to video chat from your computer, phone, or tablet and tend to have smaller group meetings or 1-1 conversations.

Top Free Features:

- Up to 10 people on video calls
- Video call recording
- HD video calling
- Interactive video chats
- Screen sharing
- Location sharing

FreeConference

FreeConference is ideal for smaller teams or meetings with five or fewer participants. One major perk of this video conferencing tool is its ease of use—no downloads are required to start using it. Plus, moderator controls allow the individual who's running the video conference to keep the meeting on track.

Top Free Features:

- Up to 5 online meeting participants
- Moderator controls
- Screen sharing
- Text chat
- Document sharing

Slack Video Calls

Slack users can take advantage of the call feature simply by using the command /call or clicking the phone icon at the top of the conversation with another Slack user. This is an easy way to make calls right from Slack if you need to ask a teammate a quick question. You can also Slack with up to 15 people if you start a call from a channel, enabling the rest of the channel's members to join. This tool is good for teams looking for a supplementary video calling solution for smaller teams.

Top Free Features:

- Group calls of up to 15 people
- Individual calls
- Messenger

Uber Conference

The free version of UberConference is ideal for teams of 10 or less. The free version limits your video call duration to 45 minutes, so it's ideal for shorter meetings. Since it allows unlimited video conferences, you can use this video conferencing tool for recurring meetings, like 1-1s or monthly team debriefs.

Top Free Features:

- Up to 10 participants
- HD Audio
- Unlimited conferences
- Screen and document sharing
- Call recording
- Mobile apps
