HISTORIC DOWNTOWN TOMBALL

Although the depot is a major attraction in Downtown Tomball, it is by no means the only place to see. Stroll on the wide sidewalks in "Old Tomball" and you'll pass a menagerie of quaint boutique shops and eye-catching antique stores. Step inside stores like Turquoise Door or Bebe LaRoo Boutique for a one-of-a-kind addition to your wardrobe, or head to Granny's Korner, Whispering Willow and Cherry Street Antiques and browse the nostalgic assortment of collectibles and antiques. Meander through the downtown area, which includes Commerce Street and Market Street, and you'll come across a wealth of art galleries and restaurants serving up everything from craft barbecue and crepes to Tex-Mex. Along with all this, Downtown Tomball is home to the hip concert venue known as Main Street Crossing, and it's where you can find the Tomball Farmers Market every Saturday morning.

TOMBALL MUSEUM CENTER

Once a frontier farming and ranching community nestled within the lush forests of the Spring Creek Area in the 1850's, the area was settled by a group of German immigrants because of how it reminded them of the Black Forest. The center has a collection of beautifully restored homes, a church, and other buildings built by some of Tomball's earliest residents. These include the fetching Griffin Memorial House built by early Texas lumberman Eugene Pilot in 1860, and the 1895 Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church that still hosts weddings to this day. While you're there, tour The Farm Museum to see a collection of early farming tools and a two-story cotton gin from the last quarter of the 19th century. The Tomball Museum Center provides an up-close look at what early life was like here in the Lone Star State.

RAILROAD DEPOT, PLAZA & GAZEBO

The depot, home of the Texas Railroad Heritage Museum, has been an epicenter of life in Tomball since the early 1900's. Tomball's historic 1907 Depot museum contains train memorabilia, original artworks, antiques, and two highly detailed model railroads. Free tours are available by appointment by calling 281-351-5484.

A silhouette of a windmill stands against a sunset sky. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm orange glow. The windmill has a circular fan with many blades and a tall, lattice-like tower. The background shows a flat landscape with some low-lying vegetation.
