Taylor, Texas sits just 35 miles northeast of Austin and offers a unique blend of historic charm and modern momentum. With its deep roots in the railroad era and a reputation for world-class barbecue—especially at the iconic Louie Mueller Barbecue—Taylor has long been a destination for food lovers and history buffs alike. Its revitalized downtown features vintage storefronts, colorful murals, and a growing arts scene that reflects the town's creative spirit. As new industries and tech investments move into the area, Taylor continues to grow while preserving the friendly, small-town atmosphere that makes it feel like home.
