Parks and Recreation

Arkansas Bend Park

A peaceful 323-acre park with two miles of shoreline. Offers opportunities for hiking, fishing, camping, picnicking and lake access via an excellent boat ramp. Several inviting, shaded picnic and camping areas above a gently sloping, rocky waterfront.

At end of Sylvester Ford Road in Travis County.

Balcones Canyonlands National Wildlife Refuge

The refuge falls at the juncture of the Great Plains and Gulf Coast bioregions. In addition, the refuge straddles the divide between the Colorado and Brazos watersheds. Beneath the land lies a mysterious labyrinth of caves. Add the unusual limestone geology of the Edwards Plateau and it's not surprising to find plants and animals adapted to live here and nowhere else. At least a third of the state's threatened and endangered species live or migrate through the area. Balcones Canyonlands National Wildlife Refuge offers some of the best bird watching.

Dink Pearson Park

The 3.6 acre park consists of limestone outcropping with shallow layers of loam and a gently sloping sandy loam shoreline. The park is covered with dense juniper/oak woodland while along the shoreline is a semi-open grassland. No entrance fees. FM 1431 south 11 miles to Lohmans Ford Rd.

Gloster Bend Recreation Area

A mile of grassy shoreline is easily accessible at the 586-acre recreation area. Park is day-use only. Horseback riding permitted, boat ramp with paved parking area, picnic tables and grills.

Off Singleton Bend Road, 6 mi. west of Lago Vista on FM 1431.
